Amman Imman Unites Nigerian and U.S. Children through its Service Learning Program: Wells of Love

Wells of Love is the service learning program of Amman Imman: Water is Life. Amman Imman is dedicated to improving and saving lives among the poorest and most severely threatened populations of the world by supplying permanent sources of water in the Azawak of West Africa.

Wells of Love empowers students as "Heroes of Compassion" - future leaders with a caring, philanthropic spirit - by engaging them to help bring water and hope to the 500,000 children and adults living in the Azawak.

Wells of Love Goals:

- 💧 Uniting students and young people of all ages, from preschoolers to university students, as caring philanthropists or "Heroes of Compassion," capable of turning their empathy into direct action through collaborative and individually initiated efforts.
- 💧 Increasing awareness among students about some of the most crucial humanitarian and environmental issues of our time, including how the global water crisis and climate change directly affect the lives of people living in the Azawak of West Africa.
- 💧 Shaping tomorrow's leaders as global activists and problem solvers, who bring about change and find positive solutions to some of our world's most challenging problems.
- 💧 Raising funds towards building numerous "Wells of Love" thereby having long-lasting and significant impact on the lives of the populations in the Azawak.
